Resolution 24/1: World Cities Day

The Governing Council,

Recalling the long-standing commitment of the United Nations Human Settlements Programme to adequate shelter for all and sustainable human settlements development in an urbanizing world, and Governing Council resolution 8/4 of 8 May 1985, which recommended to the General Assembly of the United Nations that, beginning in 1986, the first Monday of October of every year should be called the “Day of Habitat”, with a view to calling upon Governments and people from all walks of life to pay high attention to human settlements issues,

Recalling also General Assembly resolution 40/202 of 17 December 1985, by which the Assembly decided to designate the first Monday of October of every year as World Habitat Day,

Recognizing the megatrend of urbanization in human societies, and that cities, having a network of linkages not only extending far from their own boundaries but also playing a leading role in the development of rural areas, are increasingly instrumental to improving people’s living environment and quality,

Recognizing also that over 50 per cent of the global population now live in cities and the ratio continues to rise, that sustainable urban development has therefore become one of the most pressing global challenges in the twenty-first century, and that Governments must pay greater attention to and investigate critical issues in urbanization and make joint efforts to build greener, more liveable, convenient, harmonious and environment-friendly cities,

Recalling the outcome document of the United Nations Conference on Sustainable Development held in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, from 20 to 22 June 2012, entitled “The future we want”,¹ and its commitment to planning and building sustainable cities and urban settlements,

Recalling also that all participants of Expo 2010 in Shanghai, China, with the common aspiration to recall, renew and advance in the future the theme “Better city, better life”, joined the United Nations, the Bureau International des Expositions and the Organizing Committee of Expo 2010 in adopting the Shanghai Declaration on 31 October 2010, in which it is proposed to nominate 31 October as World Better Cities Day,

Recalling further the resolution adopted at the 151st General Assembly of the Bureau International des Expositions on 11 June 2012 on supporting the establishment of World Better Cities Day,

Convinced that World Better Cities Day, fit for the trend of human societies as well as the goals and missions of the United Nations Human Settlements Programme, shall be designated in an appropriate way,

Decides to recommend to the United Nations General Assembly that, beginning in 2014, 31 October of every year should be designated as World Cities Day.

Resolution 24/2: Strengthening the work of the United Nations Human Settlements Programme on urban basic services

The Governing Council,

Recalling its resolution 22/8 of 3 April 2009 on the guidelines on access to basic services for all and the subsequent resolution 23/12 of 15 April 2011 on the coordinated implementation of the guidelines on access to basic services for all and the guidelines on decentralization and strengthening of local authorities,

Recalling also its resolution 23/17 of 15 April 2011 on sustainable urban development through expanding equitable access to land, housing, basic services and infrastructure, by which it encouraged Governments and Habitat Agenda partners to promote public transport and mass transit systems, non-motorized transport and the provision of equitable space for pedestrians and cyclists, along with improvements in road systems and urban connectivity,

Recalling further paragraphs 84, 85 and 86 of the Habitat Agenda, which outline the scope of basic infrastructure and services and recommend actions by Governments at the appropriate level,

Recalling the outcome document of the United Nations Conference on Sustainable Development held in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, from 20 to 22 June 2012, entitled “The future we want”,² and its reaffirmed commitments regarding the human right to safe and clean drinking water and sanitation, to be progressively realized for populations with full respect for national sovereignty,

Recalling also the priority given in “The future we want” to, among other issues, water and sanitation, energy, sustainable transport, sustainable cities and human settlements,

Underlining the resolve highlighted in “The future we want” to strengthen the institutional framework for sustainable development, underscoring the importance of interlinkages among key issues and challenges and the need for a systematic approach to them at all relevant levels, to enhance coherence, reduce fragmentation and overlap and increase effectiveness, efficiency and transparency, while reinforcing coordination and cooperation,

Recognizing the significance of equitable and adequate access to urban basic services as a foundation for sustainable urbanization and therefore to overall social and economic development,

Recognizing also the need to improve access to safe, clean, affordable, sufficiently available and accessible drinking water and basic sanitation, as well as to improve wastewater management and drainage for sustainable development,

Recognizing further the need to improve access to reliable, affordable, economically viable, socially acceptable and environmentally sound mobility and energy services and resources for sustainable development,

² General Assembly resolution 66/288, annex.

Concerned that equitable access to urban energy, mobility, water, sanitation and waste management services and poor drainage conditions remain major challenges for many people, in particular the urban poor in developing countries,

Recognizing the positive effects of well-managed urban basic services in creating local employment and in increasing urban productivity,

Recognizing also that introducing and maintaining a holistic perspective and integrated planning of basic urban services brings economic benefits through the more efficient use of resources, synergies in the delivery of urban basic services, higher productivity and less waste, thereby promoting improved human welfare, economic growth, job creation and a sustainable environment,

Recalling General Assembly resolution 65/151 of 20 December 2010, by which the Assembly designated 2012 the International Year of Sustainable Energy for All, and mindful of the subsequent launch by the Secretary-General of his initiative “Sustainable Energy for All”,

Recognizing that transportation is central to sustainable development, as stated in “The future we want”, and cognizant of the five-year action agenda of the Secretary-General, which accords priority to urban transport,

1. Calls upon the United Nations Human Settlements Programme gradually to expand the scope of the Water and Sanitation Trust Fund and to rename it the “Urban Basic Services Trust Fund”, in order to increase site servicing, in support of the implementation of the Programme’s work programme and its various components, such as those on urban legislation, land and governance, housing and slum-upgrading, and basic services, including sustainable solutions for water and sanitation, energy, mobility, waste management and drainage;
2. Requests the United Nations Human Settlements Programme to ensure that the Urban Basic Services Trust Fund uses the earmarked sectoral funds as specified, while allowing the funding of integrated solutions for urban basic services;
3. Invites Governments and other development partners to support the Urban Basic Services Trust Fund;
4. Calls upon the United Nations Human Settlements Programme to maintain its efforts on urban water and sanitation with an enhanced focus on the poor in informal settlements;
5. Also calls upon the United Nations Human Settlements Programme to continue providing appropriate support to the regional initiatives and frameworks on urban basic services that can complement and facilitate the implementation of the Programme’s work on urban basic services at the regional and local levels;
6. Calls upon member States to galvanize efforts to make universal access to sustainable energy services a priority;
7. Calls upon the United Nations Human Settlements Programme to promote access to sustainable energy, particularly for the poor, including through decentralized options for renewable energy generation;
8. Calls upon member States to pay due attention to increased flood-risk prevention, including planning and protecting such utilities as sustainable drainage systems in order to increase settlements’ resilience and to provide protection against the adverse impacts of climate change, such as flooding and storm-water surges;
9. Also calls upon member States to step up efforts to improve urban mobility, to ensure better access to goods and services and to reduce traffic accidents and air pollution through improved urban planning, better public transport and facilities for non-motorized transport, such as walking and cycling;
10. Calls upon the United Nations Human Settlements Programme to promote sustainable mobility solutions in human settlements, especially cities, through affordable, convenient and safe mass transport and transit systems and pro-poor infrastructure development;
11. Calls upon the Executive Director to increase awareness of urban energy, mobility, drainage and waste management as further key elements of urban basic services;
12. Calls on member States, Habitat Agenda partners and beneficiaries of the Urban Basic Services Trust Fund to make full use of the guidelines on access to basic services for all;
13. Calls on the Executive Director to include criteria for enhancing integrated planning in the appraisal of all programmes and projects under the trust fund;

14. Also calls upon the Executive Director and member States to promote multi-sectoral and inter-organizational approaches, with a view to increasing policy coherence and institutional capacities, and to focus on the urban poor in line with the guidelines on access to basic services for all and the guidelines on decentralization and strengthening of local authorities;

15. Requests the Executive Director to report to the Governing Council at its twenty-fifth session on progress made in the implementation of the present resolution, on the chosen operating modalities of the trust fund and on its performance.

Resolution 24/3: Inclusive and sustainable urban planning and elaboration of international guidelines on urban and territorial planning

The Governing Council,

Recalling General Assembly resolution 67/216 of 17 December 2012, which underlines that, in view of the current rapid urbanization process, the development and promotion of adequate infrastructure and basic services, as well as effective urban planning and design, are of utmost importance for the creation of socially inclusive, economically prosperous and energy-efficient cities that maximize the benefits of agglomeration economies, minimize the demand for urban mobility and transport and provide conditions necessary for job creation and urban economic growth,

Recalling the outcome document of the United Nations Conference on Sustainable Development held in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, from 20 to 22 June 2012, entitled “The future we want”,³ and reaffirming its commitment to promoting an integrated approach to planning and building sustainable cities and urban settlements, including through supporting local authorities, increasing public awareness and enhancing the participation of urban residents, including the poor, in decision-making,

Considering the Executive Director’s report to the Governing Council at its twenty-fourth session,⁴ on the coordinated implementation of the guidelines on access to basic services for all and the guidelines on decentralization and strengthening of local authorities, and its recommendation to develop complementary guidelines on urban and territorial planning so as to facilitate the implementation of existing guidelines by providing a reference document for intersectoral and multilevel planning,

Recalling the Vancouver Declaration of the World Planners Congress of 2006,⁵ based on the following principles: promotion of sustainable development; achievement of integrated planning; integration of plans with budgets; planning with partners and stakeholders; observance of the subsidiarity principle; promotion of market responsiveness; ensuring access to land; development of appropriate planning tools; ensuring a pro-poor and inclusive orientation; and recognition of cultural diversity,

Recalling also the International Conference on Inclusive Urban Planning, held on 18 and 19 February 2013, in New Delhi, at which it was noted that cities in the developing countries have developed largely in an unplanned manner where market-driven responses in respect of urban lands do not automatically self-regulate,

Recognizing the challenges arising from poorly planned and managed urbanization in terms of urban poverty and deprivation, alongside the fact that urban planning needs to respond dynamically to the changing realities of urbanization, economic processes and demand-driven development challenges,

Recognizing also that there is a substantial proportion of the urban population whose livelihood spaces and activities, as well as spaces for living and working, lie outside the current systems of formal planning and sustainable urban growth and that, in that context, the inclusion of the poor in the formal planning process is crucial,

4. Requests the Executive Director of the United Nations Human Settlements Programme in consultation with the Committee of Permanent Representatives to initiate the elaboration of international guidelines on urban and territorial planning that will provide a global framework for improving policies, plans and designs for more compact, socially inclusive, sustainable, better integrated and connected cities and territories and to present the draft guidelines to the Governing Council at its twenty-fifth session for approval;
5. Encourages the United Nations Human Settlements Programme in collaboration with member States and Habitat Agenda partners to elaborate a set of agreed universal principles for urban and territorial planning at the city level, in particular regarding planned city extensions, at the regional and the national level, with a particular focus on national urban policies;
6. Also encourages the United Nations Human Settlements Programme in collaboration with member States and Habitat Agenda partners to elaborate these principles in the framework of decentralization, as provided by the guidelines on decentralization and strengthening of local authorities and the guidelines on access to basic services for all;
7. Further encourages the United Nations Human Settlements Programme in collaboration with member States and Habitat Agenda partners to elaborate a set of recommendations for central Governments, local authorities, civil society and experts, as well as other relevant stakeholders, to improve urban and territorial planning;
8. Requests the Executive Director of the United Nations Human Settlements Programme, in consultation with the Committee of Permanent Representatives, in the drafting of international guidelines on urban and territorial planning to engage in an inclusive consultative process with the regional offices of the United Nations Human Settlements Programme, national Governments, international associations of local authorities, including United Cities and Local Governments, all relevant United Nations organizations, international finance institutions, development agencies, relevant international professional associations and members of the Habitat Professional Forum, including the International Society of City and Regional Planners and non-governmental organizations, and other national and international stakeholders, in order to inform the drafting process with best practices and lessons learned from different contexts and at different scales;

Resolution 24/4: Gender equality and women's empowerment to contribute to sustainable urban development

The Governing Council,

Recalling the strategic plan for 2014–2019 and the work programme and budget for 2014–2015, both of which have a clear mandate to strengthen the systematic integration of a gender perspective in all the work of the United Nations Human Settlements Programme,

Recalling its resolutions 17/11 of 14 May 1999 on women in human settlements development and in the United Nations Centre for Human Settlements (Habitat), 19/16 of 9 May 2003 on women's role and rights in human settlements development and slum upgrading, 20/7 of 8 April 2005 on gender equality in human settlements development, 21/2 of 20 April 2007 on the medium-term strategic and institutional plan for 2008–2013, 21/9 of 20 April 2007 on women's land and property rights and access to finance, and 22/7 of 3 April 2009 on the work programme and budget of the United Nations Human Settlements Programme for the biennium 2010–2011,

Reaffirming its commitment to resolution 23/1 of 15 April 2011, emphasizing the need for the United Nations Human Settlements Programme systematically to integrate a gender perspective in all its work, including through the establishment of the Advisory-Group on Gender Issues, in order to achieve the effective and efficient implementation of gender mainstreaming,

Reaffirming its commitment to resolution 2012/24 of the United Nations Economic and Social Council of 27 July 2012, on mainstreaming a gender perspective into all policies and programmes of the United Nations system, by which the Council requested the United Nations system to continue working collaboratively to enhance gender mainstreaming within the United Nations system, including by continuing to align gender equality programming with national priorities; ensuring that entities within the United Nations system dedicated adequate financial and human resources to gender equality programming at the country level; strengthening the coordination of gender-responsive operational activities; enhancing the use of accountability mechanisms, including at the country level; securing technical expertise for gender equality in programme planning and implementation and providing ongoing capacity development in the area; and promoting the systematic use and analysis of data disaggregated by sex and age in the programming work as well as in measuring progress and impact,

Recognizing that persistent gender-related inequalities and women's lack of empowerment in human settlements, as evidenced by their inequitable access to land, property rights and other economic and financial assets, secure tenure, decent housing, essential infrastructure and basic services, and further aggravated by the vulnerability and lack of safety and security of women and girls in urban spaces and their unequal participation in urban governance, create challenges to achieving sustainable urban development,

Commending the United Nations Human Settlements Programme on its work in implementing gender equality and women's empowerment in its policies, programmes and projects, noting that, as stated in several documents, including the comprehensive 2011 evaluation of gender mainstreaming in the United Nations Human Settlements Programme,⁶ much remains to be done,

Reaffirming the importance of cooperation between the United Nations Human Settlements Programme and the United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women on gender-equality work and on promoting gender-responsive sustainable urban development,

Acknowledging that, in view of the urgent need to eliminate violence against women in private and public urban spaces, women's gained citizenship rights require women's leadership and involvement in urban governance and in urban planning, including for the design of public urban spaces, investments in public infrastructure and improvements of security and justice for the safety of communities and of women and girls, and their active participation in important international forums, such as the just concluded session of the Commission on the Status of Women, at which three key side events were held on the theme "Elimination and prevention of violence against women and girls",

1. Requests the Executive Director to strengthen and support the United Nations Human Settlements Programme in executing the two-fold gender strategy comprising, first, the mainstreaming of gender equality and women's empowerment in the normative work and operational programmes of the United Nations Human Settlements Programme in all key focus areas; and, second, the setting up of policies and programmes needed to achieve gender equality and women's empowerment;

2. Urges the Executive Director to form partnerships with civil society organizations, including networks of women's leaders in local governments, the private sector, the media, grass-roots women's and community-based organizations, non-governmental organizations and experts, building on their leadership in and knowledge of sustainable and gender-responsive urban development;

3. Requests the Executive Director to make optimal use of the Advisory Group on Gender Issues by building on its guidance regarding the overall mainstreaming of gender within the organization and effective integration of gender equality policies and programmes when implementing the strategic plan and programme of work;

4. Urges the Executive Director to align the gender policy and plan of the United Nations Human Settlements Programme with the system-wide action plan on gender equality and women's empowerment;

5. Invites national and local governments to develop and strengthen their policies and programmes to effectively support and to collect data disaggregated by sex and age and disseminate information on women's increased representation in local government and women's economic contributions to cities' prosperity; and to address the causes, consequences and impacts of and eliminate all forms of violence against women and girls⁷ through prevention measures, with specific attention to women's and girls' safety in private and public spaces, as defined in the Safer Cities Programme and promoted by the Global Network on Safer Cities;

6. Requests the Executive Director to allocate adequate resources for gender mainstreaming within the organization's programmes and activities.

Resolution 24/5: Pursuing sustainable development through national urban policies

The Governing Council,

Recalling General Assembly resolution 63/221 of 19 December 2008, by which, in paragraph 3, the Assembly invited Governments to encourage the principles and practice of sustainable urbanization and strengthen the role and contribution of their respective local authorities in applying those principles and practice,

Recalling General Assembly resolution 65/165 of 20 December 2010, by which the General Assembly supported the dissemination and implementation of the international guidelines on decentralization and access to basic services for all adopted by the Governing Council of the United Nations Human Settlements Programme in its resolutions 21/3 of 20 April 2007 and 22/8 of 3 April 2009,

Recalling Governing Council resolution 23/17 of 15 April 2011, by which the Council encouraged Governments and Habitat Agenda partners seriously to consider the need to increase urban density through intensification of land use, as part of improved urban planning, so as to promote development patterns that allow housing for all, increased job opportunities and reduced urban sprawl, as well as to reduce infrastructure investment costs, the ecological footprint of urban centres and demand for transport and energy use, and to overcome a growing social divide, spatial fragmentation and the resulting inefficient land-use patterns,

Recognizing paragraph 226 of the outcome document of the United Nations Conference on Sustainable Development held in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, from 20 to 22 June 2012, entitled "The future we want",⁸ on the adoption of the global ten-year framework of programmes on sustainable consumption and production patterns, including its programme on sustainable buildings and construction, and the need for a supportive urban infrastructure for sustainable lifestyles,

⁷ See the agreed conclusions of the fifty-seventh session of the Commission on the Status of Women, 4–15 March 2013.

⁸ General Assembly resolution 66/288, annex.

Taking note of the Nairobi Declaration of the African Ministerial Conference on Housing and Urban Development, adopted at its fourth session on 23 March 2012, by which African ministers responsible for housing and urban development committed themselves to, inter alia, strengthening and developing transformative national urban policies and adopting strategies for realizing smarter and more sustainable urban development through the reconfiguration of space, infrastructure and flows in new urban development and retrofitting existing cities, resulting in compact, mixed-use, high-density development that is walkable, bicycle-friendly and transit-oriented,

Considering the Executive Director's progress report to the Governing Council at its twenty-fourth session on the coordinated implementation of the guidelines on access to basic services for all and the guidelines on decentralization and strengthening of local authorities and its recommendation to develop complementary guidelines on urban and territorial planning so as to facilitate implementation of the existing guidelines by providing a reference document for intersectoral and multilevel planning,⁹

Recalling the objective of focus area two, urban planning and design, of the United Nations Human Settlements Programme strategic plan for 2014–2019, namely, to improve policies, plans and designs for more compact, socially inclusive, better integrated and connected cities that foster sustainable urban development and are resilient to climate change, at the city, regional and national levels,

1. Encourages Governments to initiate processes to review, strengthen and develop national urban policies where appropriate as a key strategy for national social and economic development, to maximize the national and local benefits of urbanization, while mitigating potential adverse externalities, and as a coordination mechanism among different sectors and ministries;
2. Requests the Executive Director in consultation with the Committee of Permanent Representatives to develop a general guiding framework for the development, where appropriate, of national urban policies, based on international good experiences, to further support member States when developing and improving their urban policies;
3. Invites member States to facilitate participatory processes and wide stakeholder participation, including local authorities and their associations, when developing, revising and implementing national urban policies, where appropriate, in particular through national urban forums also as a means for the preparation of the third United Nations conference on housing and sustainable urban development (Habitat III);
4. Encourages Governments and Habitat Agenda partners to use planned city extension methodologies to guide the sustainable development of cities experiencing rapid urban growth, to prevent slum proliferation, enhance access to basic urban services, support inclusive housing, enhance job opportunities and create a safe and healthy living environment;
5. Invites the Executive Director to establish strategic partnerships towards strengthening the contribution of the United Nations Human Settlements Programme to the implementation of the ten-year framework of programmes on sustainable consumption and production patterns adopted at the 2012 United Nations Conference on Sustainable Development, including its programme on sustainable buildings and construction, and also to consider how to promote a supportive urban infrastructure for sustainable lifestyles through national spatial frameworks, including urban-rural linkages;
6. Invites the international community and financial institutions to contribute adequate financial resources to the United Nations Habitat and Human Settlements Foundation to enable the United Nations Human Settlements Programme to assist developing countries and countries with economies in transition in mobilizing public investment and private capital to achieve sustainable urban development through the implementation of national urban policies and planned city extensions;
7. Requests the Executive Director to report to the Governing Council at its twenty-fifth session on progress made in the implementation of the present resolution.

Resolution 24/6: Supporting action for the creation of safer cities

The Governing Council,

Recalling resolution 23/14 of 15 April 2011, on sustainable urban development through policies for safer cities and the prevention of urban crime, and recognizing its implementation and the growing involvement of local authorities through the Global Network on Safer Cities,

Guided by the principles of the United Nations guidelines for cooperation and technical assistance in the field of urban crime prevention, as set out in the annex to Economic and Social Council resolution 1995/9 of 24 July 1995,

Convinced that the prevention of urban crime is one of the essential elements of sustainable urban developmental efforts and recognizing the direct relevance of urban safety for internationally agreed development goals,

Welcoming the General Assembly thematic debate on crime, violence and insecurity as a threat to development, held at its sixty-sixth session, in New York on 26 June 2012,

Underlining the fact that one of the most effective ways to meet the needs of member States in this area consists of both normative and operational activities, such as the development and dissemination of standards and tools, advisory services, training programmes and the dissemination and exchange of information, best practices and lessons learned at the regional, national and local levels,

Appreciating the partnerships that the Safer Cities Programme of the United Nations Human Settlements Programme has fostered within the United Nations system with such agencies as the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime, the United Nations Development Programme, the United Nations Children's Fund, the United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and Women's Empowerment and the United Nations Office of Disarmament Affairs, with a view to integrating the safer cities approach into their programming, pursuant to their mandates, and welcoming the positive outcomes of these partnerships in leveraging knowledge and resources for improved on-the-ground implementation of the Safer Cities Programme,

Recognizing, however, the continued challenges associated with generating adequate financial resources for the promotion of urban safety through the implementation of multi-sector and preventive approaches at the city level,

Acknowledging the call of mayors and other stakeholders at the sixth session of the World Urban Forum in Naples, as part of the Global Network on Safer Cities, for intensified efforts to strengthen the integrity of the safer cities approach by means of international cooperation and United Nations system-wide guidelines on safer cities and financing mechanisms on safer cities,

Taking note of the outcome statement of the first steering committee meeting of the Global Network on Safer Cities on actions towards enhancing the roles of local authorities on safer cities,

1. Reaffirms the importance attached to capacity-building, technical cooperation and advisory services as a means for the Safer Cities Programme to respond to the needs of countries and to contribute to efforts by the international community in the face of increasing crime and violence in many cities and to assist member States in achieving the goals of preventing urban crime, reducing urban vulnerabilities to crime and improving the response to urban crime, in accordance with Economic and Social Council resolution 1995/9, and in line with Governing Council resolution 23/14;

2. Stresses the importance of continuing to strengthen the normative and operational activities of the Safer Cities Programme, particularly in low- and middle-income countries, so as to meet the needs of member States, at their request, for support in the prevention of urban crime and the enhancement of urban safety by developing standards and tools, by undertaking advisory services and training programmes and by disseminating and exchanging information through, among other measures, the promotion of field studies and research at the national and local levels;

3. Calls upon the United Nations Human Settlements Programme to accelerate the effective implementation of the Safer Cities Programme, taking into account the provisions of the present resolution;

4. Welcomes the creation of the Global Network on Safer Cities and its support through the Safer Cities Programme;

5. Encourages Governments and national and international stakeholders to consider the formulation of goals and targets that strengthen the role of cities and urban development in the prevention of violence and crime, including violence against women and girls;
6. Calls upon the United Nations Human Settlements Programme to continue its work for the prevention of urban violence and crime and for the enhancement of urban safety, by implementing Governing Council resolution 23/14, and in particular its call for United Nations system-wide guidelines on safer cities and an inter-agency collaborative framework on safer cities, without prejudice to the distinctive mandates of each entity and in full compliance with the financial rules and regulations;
7. Calls upon all relevant international, intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations to continue cooperating with the Safer Cities Programme in support of its normative and operational activities, as part of the Global Network on Safer Cities;
8. Stresses the importance of sharing best practices between cities and local authorities and, in this regard, calls for the development of an urban safety monitor to measure the results of prevention efforts at the local level in order to facilitate the peer review of efforts by cities and local authorities to promote crime prevention and urban safety strategies;
9. Calls for the monitoring and measurement of the programmes of the United Nations Human Settlements Programme contributing to crime and violence prevention efforts at the city and local authority level;
10. Invites the Economic and Social Council and the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice to set up an inter-agency task team to review and present proposals for complementing the 1995 guidelines for cooperation and technical assistance in the field of crime prevention and the 2002 guidelines for the prevention of crime; the task team should also consider the recommendations presented in this regard by local authorities and other stakeholders, in particular by the Global Network on Safer Cities;

Resolution 24/9: Inclusive national and local housing strategies to achieve the Global Housing Strategy paradigm shift

The Governing Council,

Recalling the Global Housing Strategy framework document¹⁴ and the report of the Executive Director on the activities of the United Nations Human Settlements Programme,¹⁵ section P of which reviews the implementation of resolution 23/16 of 15 April 2011, on the formulation of a global housing strategy,

¹² Report of the United Nations Conference on Human Settlements (Habitat II), Istanbul, 3–14 June 1996 (United Nations publication, Sales No. E.97.IV.6), chap. I, resolution 1, annex II.

¹³ General Assembly resolution 66/288, annex.

¹⁴ HSP/GC/24/2/Add.6.

¹⁵ HSP/GC/24/2.

Recalling also General Assembly resolution 43/181 of 20 December 1988, adopting the Global Strategy for Shelter to the Year 2000, and paragraph 65 of the Habitat Agenda,¹⁶ which encourages the periodic evaluation and revision, as necessary, of enabling housing policies with a view to creating a framework for efficient and effective housing delivery systems,

Recognizing that output-based housing policies and strategies have sometimes failed to match supply with demand, resulting in certain instances in large numbers of vacant housing units and in isolated ghost towns, while in other instances there is a severe lack of adequate housing available, necessitating a paradigm shift to results-based housing policies and strategies that recognize the need to integrate housing with other urban uses,

Recalling the targets set out in the 2000 United Nations Millennium Declaration¹⁷ and the 2001 Declaration on Cities and Other Human Settlements in the New Millennium¹⁸ of achieving a significant improvement in the lives of at least 100 million slum dwellers by 2020,

Taking note of the reports of the fifth and sixth sessions of the World Urban Forum, highlighting the large number of events related to housing and slum upgrading, which demonstrate a sustained demand for the United Nations Human Settlements Programme to respond to housing and slum-upgrading issues,

Taking note of the Rabat Declaration, adopted at the international conference on the theme: “Making slums history: a worldwide challenge for 2020”, held in Rabat from 26 to 28 November 2012, by which 25 member States committed themselves to halving the proportion of people living in slums between 2015 and 2030,

Recognizing that achievements towards the implementation of goal 7 of the Millennium Development Goals have been made by improving the living conditions of more than 220 million slum dwellers, surpassing the target of 100 million, and that, in the meantime, an additional 360 million slum dwellers have been added to the global urban population, which calls for a new approach to slum upgrading and prevention,

Recognizing also that slum upgrading must be undertaken as part of a broader framework of urban and housing policies, underpinned by appropriate urban planning as an important tool to prevent the formation of new slums, and acknowledging that slums are no stand-alone phenomenon but are linked to urban poverty and inequalities, and the lack of mixed-use urban planning and adequate land and housing options,

Welcoming efforts made by Governments in implementing large-scale inclusive housing programmes for diversifying access to adequate housing for all,

Acknowledging that sustainable, adequate, rights-based and inclusive housing policies and strategies are instrumental in addressing the challenge of slums and sustainable urban development, as well as contributing to stimulating urban economic development and job creation,

Recognizing the progress that the United Nations Human Settlements Programme has made to date in developing the Global Housing Strategy framework document and in widely disseminating the concept and engaging in discussions with more than 600,000 national and city housing officials, professionals, academics and members of civil society and the private sector through the use of innovative social media and by advocating the Strategy’s principles and methodology in various international conferences and workshops,

Acknowledging the role and responsibility of national and local governments, communities and Habitat Agenda partners, and also of regional initiatives, in addressing current challenges, including urban segregation, housing shortages and the formation and growth of slums,

Embracing the paradigm shift elaborated in the Global Housing Strategy, including its principles and guidelines, towards achieving its outcomes at the global, national and local levels through the new urban agenda by strengthening the linkages between urban planning, neighbourhood development and housing, including also slum upgrading and prevention,

1. Requests the United Nations Human Settlements Programme to pursue the expected outcomes of the Global Housing Strategy, in collaboration with other United Nations agencies, including the United Nations Environment Programme, by proposing a paradigm shift, where needed, including the integration of housing with other urban uses; encouraging the pro-poor performance of markets; promoting system-wide reforms to enable wider access to adequate housing solutions; strengthening linkages between housing, the economy, employment and poverty reduction; using sustainable building and neighbourhood designs and contributing to improving the living conditions of slum dwellers;
2. Requests the United Nations Human Settlements Programme to develop normative material, including the documentation of good practices from countries that are already applying the principles of the Global Housing Strategy and guidelines and evaluation frameworks, to support policymakers in developing appropriate housing and slum-upgrading policies that are results-based, gender-responsive and rights-based and that encourage the development of housing of an adequate and sustainable quality and in adequate and sustainable quantities that is accessible and affordable to all and produced by a variety of actors, including local authorities, civil society, the private sector and housing institutions;
3. Requests the United Nations Human Settlements Programme to achieve the expected outcomes of the Global Housing Strategy, at national and local levels, by supporting requests from member States to address the current drawbacks in housing delivery through the paradigm shift of using urban planning as an entry point to housing, ensuring that housing is delivered as part of mixed urban uses, as well as achieving appropriate density, the integration of social groups and improved mobility;
4. Invites central and local governments to engage with the United Nations Human Settlements Programme in global and regional platforms, including the Global Housing Strategy network, in collaboration with other United Nations bodies and regional organizations, to share evidence-based knowledge, experiences and effective innovative practices in housing and slum-upgrading that demonstrate the new paradigm;
5. Invites the United Nations Human Settlements Programme to support national and local governments and key Habitat Agenda partners and their urban coordination mechanisms in formulating, implementing, monitoring and evaluating inclusive national and local housing strategies;
6. Encourages Governments and Habitat Agenda partners to empower all citizens, in particular women and youth, through inclusive broad-based participatory processes to contribute effectively to the development and implementation of housing and slum-upgrading strategies, as well as action plans leading to security of tenure;
7. Invites the Executive Director to report to the Governing Council at its twenty-fifth session on progress made in the implementation of the Global Housing Strategy.
